

Walter Decides To Campaign For 14th Term

By Leonard Randolph

REP. FRANCIS E. WALTER told The Daily Record last night he will seek reelection to Congress for a 14th term.

Rep. Walter told The Record: "For almost a year I have been contemplating a decision of very deep importance to me personally and — I like to believe — to the people of the 15th District.

"The question facing me was whether or not I should offer my candidacy for reelection to Congress.

"On the one hand I have served in Congress for more than a quarter of a century. During this time, I have been able to accomplish many things for all the people of the district and have been able to win for them, through my activities, a not insignificant role in the affairs of the Nation.

"On the other hand, during recent months, I have been strained by physical difficulty, aggravated by a fracture of my hip last Summer. The distress has often been severe and has made the prospect of retirement a most inviting one.

"If my personal desires were the only ones to consider, the choice would be a simple one. But I am aware of the obligations that I have incurred to my constituents and to my colleagues in Congress.

"I am aware, too, of the achievements that would be affected if I were now to withdraw from the struggle in which they were won.

"In considering whether or not to campaign again I have consulted with leaders of the Congress and my loyal supporters in the district.

"I told them frankly of my wish to retire. Their response, their insistence that I remain, moved me as have few moments in my career.

"I have weighed the alternatives carefully. Certainly no man is 'indispensable.'

"Yet the demands of duty often limit or even fully determine the immediate inclinations of the individual.

"With this in mind, therefore, I have decided to seek reelection to the Congress, believing sincerely that, in this matter, as in all others in my official life, my own choice must continue to be that of the people whom I have been chosen to serve.

Behind the scenes during recent months, Democratic party officials throughout the 15th District have been carrying on an unrelenting drive to convince Congressman Walter that he should run again.

But a major determining factor in his decision, sources close to the Congressman said, has been "the enormous number of persons who have written, wired, called or visited Rep.

Automobile Racing Champ Taken From Hotel Room

HAVANA, Feb. 23 (AP)—An associate of Juan Miguel Fangio said tonight the five-time world automobile racing champion had been kidnapped from his hotel room in downtown Havana.

Nelo Ugolini, a representative for the Maserati racing car factory, said Fangio was forced to leave his hotel at gunpoint about 8:30 p.m.

Ugolini said he was talking to Fangio in the lobby of the Hotel Lincoln when an unmasked man strode up, produced a pistol and ordered Fangio out of the hotel.

Automobile

Ugolini said Fangio was pushed into an automobile which drove off at high speed.

Officials of the National Sports Commission were not available for comment. Police declined to say anything about Fangio's sudden disappearance.

Rebel elements had warned of bombings, sabotage and other acts to break up the Cuban Gran Premio automobile races scheduled to start Monday afternoon.

"That happens when fliers are not trained to operate under conditions of fog or dense cloudiness.

"There were no blind flying instruments on the helicopters and the fliers were not trained to cope with such conditions."

Flying at 200 to 300 feet elevation Saturday the copters encountered dense fog and clouds before they had a chance to avoid it, Col. Forest reported. "It came on them very suddenly."

Wreckage of two helicopters was strewn widely over the hillside 15 miles east of Red Bluff, catching fire and burning five of the six men killed. The third copter did not break up and its three occupants were hurt only slightly.

Bodies of the six dead fliers were brought out by helicopter several hours after the crash.

The Army announced the identity of four of them:

C.W.O. Stanley C. Small, 25, of Orlando, Fla., whose wife lives in Junction City, Kan.

Walter to ask him to seek reelection.

Those requests have come from hundreds of persons without regard to political affiliation. The number of letters received by Walter's office has been greatly increased since he announced five weeks ago that he would not run unless medical examinations showed him to be in good health.

This was the first indication the public had been given that he was considering retirement.

Rep. Walter — known to many of this district's voters by his nickname, "Tad" — is one of the most powerful vote-getters the Democrats have ever had in Pennsylvania State politics.

When he took his seat in the House to begin serving his 13th term, Walter was the 17th ranking member of the group, only 16 other Congressmen (nearly all of them from the solid-Democratic South) had served longer.

Because of his seniority, he was the only man to hold the chairmanship of more than one committee — and because he has established a reputation as a hard-working legislator in varied fields.

Although his work as chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee has brought him into the national spotlight more consistently than his other actions, Walter has earned the respect of his colleagues for his energetic activities on the House Patronage Committee and the extremely important House Judiciary Committee.

Fog Ruled Cause Of Air Crash

RED BLUFF, Calif., Feb. 23 (AP)—The three Army helicopters that crashed east of Red Bluff, killing six airmen, became "disoriented" in a blanket of fog and flew into a rocky hill, the officer investigating the mishap reported today.

"It is a distinct possibility that the pilots got vertigo and lost their sense of direction and speed," Col. Frank G. Forest told The Associated Press.

Congress Brought Into FCC Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Rep. Harris (D-Ark.) said today he believes a law to curb wire-pulling on Federal Communications Commission decisions was "thwarted" in the Miami Channel 10 case and in other cases too.

He said Congress itself left the gate open for abuse when it passed the law in 1952. He said Congress members feared the legislation would shut off their own access to the FCC on pending cases.

Harris heads the House Commerce Committee and its special subcommittee which renews tomorrow an inquiry into whether the supposedly independent federal regulatory agencies are doing what the law intended in their rulemaking over far-flung business interests.

Questioning

The subcommittee slated Florida lawyer Thurman A. Whiteside for questioning tomorrow. Ousted subcommittee counsel Bernard Schwartz has testified that Whiteside paid $2,500 to FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack. He pictured Whiteside as working for the winner in a contested FCC award of lucrative TV Channel 10 in Miami. Whiteside has accused Schwartz of lying and Mack also has denied the allegations.

So far the hearings have been marked by a swirl of testimony about efforts by both sides in the Channel 10 case to win the FCC's okay. This has led to congressional calls for a code of ethics to cover regulatory agencies.

Rep. Udall (D - Ariz.) today urged the FCC to "adopt rules which would prevent members of Congress—or anyone else—from intervening in commission hearings."

Harris told newsmen that in passing a communications act sponsored by former Sen. McFarland (D-Ariz.) in 1952 "I think we left the gate open—I think we left a gap in the law."

He expressed the view that "the law has been thwarted" in the Channel 10 case "and I imagine has been on other occasions."

As Harris explained it, when the 1952 bill was pending one proposed amendment provided that no one could contact an FCC examiner or commissioner during the course of a proceeding. It has long been congressional practice to pass on to federal agencies inquiries and requests from constituents and others.

When the legislators found the proposed curb would cut them off from contact with the FCC, Harris said, they adopted instead a provision that persons who had made representations in FCC proceedings could not make further representations without announcing the fact.

Reds Explode H-Bomb

TOKYO, Monday, Feb. 24 (AP)—Soviet Russia exploded a hydrogen bomb in the Siberian arctic region about 6 p.m. Sunday, Japan's Central Meteorological Observatory said today.

"The blast was rather big," an observatory spokesman told newsmen, "and was believed similar in size to a previous Russian test held last October."

Location

The staff figured the "largest Russian blast occurred about 4,000 kilometers—2,480 miles—north-northwest of Japan," the spokesman reported.

He said abnormal air pressure believed to have been caused by a Russian nuclear test, was "registered at various Japanese observation posts about 9:30 a.m. EST Sunday."

Digging With Spoons Saves Human Life

CAMBRIDGE CITY, Ind., Feb. 23 (AP)—Wilbur "Pete" Harold, 42, was lifted alive from a caved-in well in his basement early today in an eight-hour rescue operation so delicate that workmen dug with kitchen spoons.

He appeared uninjured, but suffered shock.

Harold was trapped 20 feet below the basement floor of his home in East Germantown near Cambridge City when he and two other men attempted to remove a broken water pipe.

Shale and gravel buried him to his shoulders and threatened to engulf him.

Missing Bride Opens Wide Police Search

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—The mysterious disappearance of a bride-to-be five hours before her big church wedding set off a thorough search today in her Brooklyn neighborhood. A 13-state police alarm was sent out.

Irene Arzedi, 29, was last seen yesterday in a Brooklyn drug store where she bought cold cream and bobby pins. She had met her bridegroom, Joseph Pinto, 31, there briefly.

William Scanapelo, proprietor of the store, said Miss Arzedi appeared cheerful and excited about her wedding plans when she left the store between 10:30 and 10:45 a.m.

Early Mass

She and Pinto had attended early Mass at our Lady of Mount Carmel church at 8 a.m. and met again briefly at the drugstore. They were to have been married at the church at 4 p.m. A big reception was to follow the wedding ceremony.

When Pinto telephoned her apartment at 1:30 p.m., he found that Miss Arzedi had not returned. Police were notified.

Two strange telephone calls were linked to the woman's disappearance. Both calls came to her apartment. Miss Arzedi's brother, Carlo, 28, received the calls—one just before midnight last night and another at 2:30 p.m. today.

On both occasions, Arzedi told police he heard a man's voice talking to somebody else. When Arzedi spoke, the caller hung up.

Police assigned a 10-man emergency squad to search every building from cellar to roof along the route she would have walked home from the drugstore. Ninety patrol cars searched an expanded area of her neighborhood.

Miss Arzedi, who worked in a blouse factory, was described as 5 feet 11, weighing 105 pounds with dark hair and brown eyes. She was wearing a red-and-green kerchief over pin curlers and a full-length gray coat.

She and Pinto, who had grown up together and went to school together, had dated for two years and set the wedding date six months ago. Pinto is a magazine distributor.

Democrats Favor Knox, McBride

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Democratic party leaders reportedly have narrowed their choice for Pennsylvania's gubernatorial nomination to two men, Attorney General Thomas D. McBride and James W. Knox, Allegheny County controller.

The move appeared to be an effort to sidetrack the candidacy of Lt. Gov. Roy Furman, only formally announced Democrat seeking the governorship.

After a six hour meeting of state Democratic leaders here yesterday, State Sen. Joseph M. Barr, the party's state chairman, said the selection would be made from two men. Although he refused to name the two it was reported that McBride and Knox were the men.

"Survey Meeting"

Barr said, however, the Democratic group had not come to Washington to pick a slate for the coming campaign. He called the gathering a "survey meeting," adding it would be "poor policy to decide a Pennsylvania matter in Washington."

The group was in Washington to hear former President Harry Truman speak at a fund raising dinner last night.

Barr said the party heads would meet again in Harrisburg next week — possibly Wednesday — in what he hopes will be the last meeting prior to the state policy committee the following week.

Gov. George Leader is believed to be the likely candidate for the Senate.

Barr said the group discussed drafting Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) or Pittsburgh Mayor David L. Lawrence but both men removed themselves from the picture by flatly refusing to relinquish their present posts.

Lawrence is reportedly in favor of Knox, who is also believed to be acceptable to Rep. William Green, Philadelphia city chairman.

Clark said that under no circumstances would he resign to run for the governorship.

Furman has said he intends to remain in the race even if by-passed by the party leadership. Still to be heard from is State Supreme Court Justice Michael Musmanno of Pittsburgh whose candidacy was advanced by friendly supporters in eastern counties over the weekend. He has promised to give their plea "warm hearted" consideration.

Dispute Center Of Conversation

LONDON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Special envoy Robert Murphy conferred with Prime Minister Macmillan at dinner tonight on his mission to heal the breach between France and Tunisia.

Winding up a round of preliminary talks, the U.S. undersecretary of state said he will fly to Paris tomorrow in an effort to help resolve the dispute that arose over French bombing of a Tunisian border village. Then he is going on to Tunis.

Anderson Calls For Optimism

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Anderson said today short-range economic factors warrant "a great deal of optimism" for the immediate business future.

He described them as economic indicators "which I think gives us reasonable grounds to believe that there will be a real revitalization of the economy."

Senior Diplomat

"As of now," said one senior diplomat, "it looks like the whole question is stalled over the means of getting it started. None of the diplomats with whom I have talked has any instructions from his government to approach Soviet officials and there has been no move from the Russians to start formal talks."

The last official move came last week. U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson delivered President Eisenhower's communication suggesting both sides end their speeches and start some action. The message went to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Summit Conference Drive Stalls

MOSCOW, Feb. 23 (AP)—The drive toward a summit conference appeared stalled today by the lack of a diplomatic self-starter.

Leaders of both the West and East have expressed agreement that the necessary arrangements for a top-level meeting to discuss disarmament and other vital issues could be handled through normal diplomatic channels.

A survey of Western diplomats in the Soviet capital, however, showed none had instructions from home to initiate any move to get the diplomatic work started.

Nor has there been any indication the Kremlin is ready to give the opening push to diplomatic arrangements.

Leftist Wins First Free Election In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 23 (AP)—Leftist Lawyer Arturo Frondizi today won the six-year presidential term in Argentina's first free election since Juan D. Peron's dictatorship.

It looked like a landslide.

Shortly before midnight unofficial tallies gave Frondizi, who ran with Peron's blessing, 662,552 to 392,505 for his moderate opponent, Ricardo Balbin.

Peronist supporters abandoned blank ballot protest tactics of previous elections and swung their vote to give Frondizi an apparent smashing victory.

Frondizi's triumph was indicated when he took an early lead in the federal capital and in Buenos Aires, Balbin's home province.

Lead Widens

Frondizi claimed victory in a statement saying he had no commitments to any one and will rule for the good of all Argentines.

Reginaldo Manubens Calvet, chairman of the national committee of the Balbin wing of the Radical Party, virtually conceded defeat long before midnight as the counting of an estimated eight million ballots progressed.

He told gloomy followers at Balbin's headquarters "the early results showing the Peronist swing toward Frondizi proved that the totalitarian machine, forged so many years ago, could not and would not be demolished by the revolutionary provisional government."

Frondizi, who told questioners he has no doubts the armed forces will let him take office May 1, said he will discuss the country's problems with Provisional President Pedro Aramburu during the coming two months.

Good Morning!

Man's conscience does not prevent him from sinning. It merely prevents him from enjoying his sin.

Girl Injured As Truck, Car Collide

MOUNT POCONO — A 27-year-old construction engineer was fatally injured when his sport car and a tractor-trailer collided on Route 611, 150 feet south of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad's underpass, at 2:30 a.m. yesterday.

Police Chief William Post identified the victim as Lloyd Ellison, III, of P. O. Box 81, Mount Pocono. His companion, Nancy Heydt, 20, of Cresco, was reported in guarded condition at Monroe County General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, last night. She sustained head and other injuries.

Post identified the driver of the tractor-trailer, owned by Troy Dairy Farms, as Gordon Harvey, 21, of Mainesburg, Pa. He was released on $2,000 bail for a hearing on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

Dr. E. O. Headrick of Mount Pocono, deputy Monroe County coroner, said Ellison suffered a crushed chest, broken neck, multiple internal injuries and multiple fractures.

Demolished

His MG sports sedan, valued at $1,400, was demolished. The tractor-trailer, loaded with milk, suffered a broken air hose in the crash. With no brakes, the vehicle veered off the highway and dropped 25 feet down an embankment. The driver was not injured. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $10,000.

The tractor-trailer was headed south, while Ellison was driving north when the crash occurred. Post, who said his investigation is continuing, was assisted by State Police from the local barracks.

Ellison, who operated his own business here, was a native of Capetown, South Africa, and had resided in Monroe County for a number of years after coming here from Melbourne, Australia.

A Methodist, he was a graduate of Pennington, N.J., Preparatory School and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he was a member of Delta Kappa Upsilon fraternity.

Surviving are his father, Hallstead Ellison, an oil engineer currently employed in Sumatra; his mother, Mrs. Pearl Cruse Ellison, Mount Pocono, and a sister, Mrs. William Rogers, Boston, Mass.

Funeral services will be announced by the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home, Stroudsburg.

Martin Not To Attend Conference

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Sen. Martin (R-Pa.) and all but two of Pennsylvania's 17 Republican congressmen have refused to attend a bipartisan state conference next week on methods to fight the state's rising unemployment.

Reps. James G. Fulton of Pittsburgh and John P. Saylor of Johnstown said they would accept the invitation from Gov. Leader.

Agreement

Sen. Clark (D-Pa.) and all 12 of the state's Democratic congressmen have agreed to attend. In a letter to Leader rejecting the invitation, the Republicans said:

"Jobs, not political pow-wows are the vital need in Pennsylvania's economically depressed areas at this time."

Fulton said he would join any bipartisan attempt at solving the unemployment situation.

Declaration

He declared that foreign intervention should be avoided and that the constitution and laws should be observed.

The air force said its raids on the rebel radio stations in Padang and Bukittinggi in Central Sumatra yesterday were aimed at disrupting rebel communications. Some bridges also were destroyed, the air force said.

A government spokesman said the raids were a "move by the Jakarta government to bring sense into the power-mad rebel leaders."

If the man can find an outlet to plug that TV cord into, he's certainly going to see one or more of the symptoms of low HOUSEPOWER. His TV picture may shrink and wiggle when that coffee maker starts; the lights may dim. The coffee maker will be slow heating up.

And no wonder the Mrs. looks bewildered at the maze of "Octopus plugs"—a sure sign of low HOUSEPOWER. For full HOUSEPOWER all they'd have to do is call their electrical contractor or electric company for a "HOUSEPOWER Rating." The electrical contractor can do the job quickly, neatly, economically. And full HOUSEPOWER will increase the value of their home.

MAKING THE UNIVERSE WORK IS A FULL TIME JOB FOR ANY MAN...

And putting the mind of a young boy to work is a man-sized job for any teacher. Take the young man here. He's turning 12. He's discovered a new universe all his own. It's a universe filled with algebraic equations, geometric problems and the abstract theories of mathematics.

One of these days he may find the secret fuel that will take us on round-trip, non-stop flights to the moon. Or the man-made metal we need to replace steel. Or an artificial heart which will lengthen the span of human years.

All of these things are somewhere in his mind—or the minds of other boys just like him, sitting in classrooms just like this one.

And all of this is a part of the magnificent adventure of education.

What are WE doing in education in Monroe County? Are we keeping up with the times? What do we need to do to make our educational system better than ever before?

To find the answers to those questions The Daily Record is conducting a survey of all classroom teachers, administrators, college instructors and others interested in education in Monroe County.

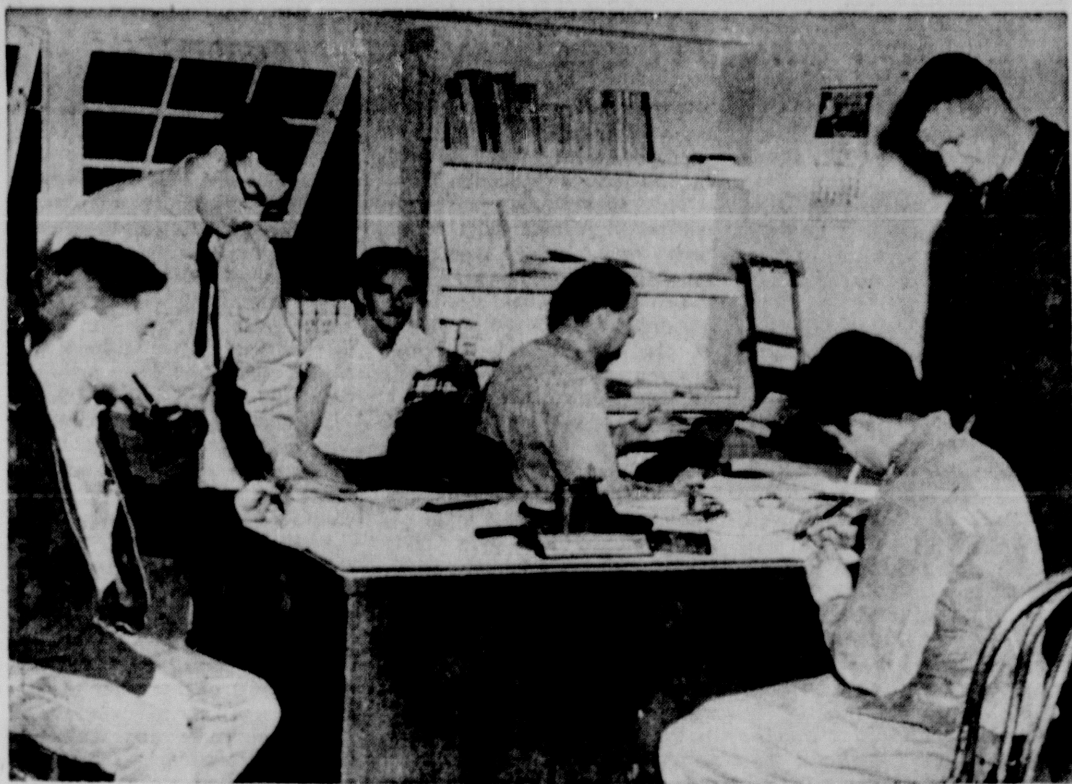

Watch for the series of articles based on their answers to the survey.

12 Recruits Sign With Guard Units

TWELVE new men were accepted into Co. F and G, 109th Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard, during an open house program at the East Stroudsburg Army on Saturday.

A spokesman for the unit said last night that 12 additional men have indicated an interest in the unit, but cannot be accepted until their discharge and physical conditions are checked.

Approximately 100 persons toured the army during the program and saw equipment used by the guardsmen in various activities.

They also heard orientation talks covering positions within the company which are open to potential enlistees.

A special National Guard program was carried over radio station WVPO.

Knowland Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said today the Eisenhower administration is keeping a "constant check" on the economy and will be ready to move swiftly if the business decline is not halted soon.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, said in an interview that administration officials have found some encouraging signs as the result of recent actions that have been taken but are preparing further moves if necessary.

The cut in the Federal Reserve discount rate apparently has given an impetus to housing and that is encouraging," he said. "That is only one of a number of actions the administration is prepared to take if they are needed."

The Federal Reserve system last month lowered its discount rate — the amount of interest charged by federal reserve banks on loans to member banks — from 3 to 2 1/2 per cent.

Knowland said strenuous efforts are under way to cut the time lag between planning and actual expenditures on defense contracts.

The GOP leader said no decisions have been made yet on the final form of any program that might be thrown into the breach if business and employment continue to decline.

He said tax cuts, a public works program and orders to start projects already approved by Congress are being considered. He added that the timing, as well as the necessity for any program of this nature will depend on the progress of economic conditions in the next few weeks.

President Eisenhower already has proposed a speedup in the modernization and repair of post-offices, but Democrats have said this is not likely to have much early effect on reducing unemployment.

The President is understood to favor also putting additional money into the pot for the interstate highway program, which Knowland has pointed out already is geared at a $2,100,000,000 spending rate for this calendar year.

How long the Democrats in Congress are going to wait for the administration to make concrete proposals before getting under way themselves seems likely to depend on business and employment indicators in the next three or four weeks.

Jesus Loved Them

Mary The Mother

"And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary."

—Luke 1:26,27

MARY, the mother of Jesus, was referred to by the Jews as the daughter of Eli; but early Christian writers called her the daughter of Joakim and Anna.

She was related by marriage to Elizabeth, the wife of Zacharias, the priest.

The fact that she was already with child when she was married to Joseph made her an object of much ridicule by her contemporaries, who did not believe in her accounts of a visitation from Gabriel, nor of the announcement that she was to become the virgin mother of the Messiah.

The story connected with the birth of Jesus, the flight into Egypt, and the presentation of her Son at the Temple are all related in full in the Gospels.

Mary's profound thoughtfulness and material love are indicated in the New Testament account, which says that "his mother kept all these things in her heart."

Perhaps no mother in history suffered the long travail for her son, as Mary in her deep concern for Jesus, from the night of His birth in Bethlehem to the final tragic night of Golgotha.

Scripture mentions her only four times following the reappearance of Jesus and the beginnings of His ministry after 18 years of absence or silence.

The first is the marriage at Cana in Galilee, at which she was present with her Son. The second was at Jerusalem at the last Passover, observed by Jesus. The third was at the foot of the Cross, when Jesus committed her to the care of John. His beloved disciple with the words, "Woman, behold thy son;" and to John, "Behold thy Mother."

Finally, in the days following the Ascension, Mary met with the faithful disciples in the upper room, where they "all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication."

'Heart Sunday' Drive At $2,065.03

Only Three Districts Make Reports

MONROE COUNTY'S "Heart Sunday" drive to conquer heart disease was off to a "fine start" yesterday afternoon.

Campaign director Frank Lanterman said that only three districts reported during the afternoon. They were Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Bartonsville.

Lanterman said that total funds collected in those three districts alone accounted for $2,065.03.

Still to be heard from are all other divisions in townships and boroughs throughout the county, Lanterman said.

Issues Request

The campaign chairman issued this request to all captains and solicitors who have not yet reported:

"It is very important that we receive reports and collections as soon as possible.

"Collections may be left at the Lanterman Funeral Home in East Stroudsburg or at Joseph DeRenzi and Sons on N. Sixth St. in Stroudsburg.

"Anything division leaders can possibly do to encourage workers to make prompt collections and to report their totals to us rapidly will be greatly appreciated.

"The need for research in the field of heart disease is greater today than ever before. We have had encouraging indications that some new and highly effective treatment methods have been found.

"With the help of voluntary contributions, America can conquer its number one killer—heart disease. This Heart Fund drive and this year might do the trick."

Lanterman expressed "deep thanks" to all workers and captains who are helping in the present drive. He especially thanked Miss Louise Baldwin who donated her services for the entire afternoon yesterday at First Stroudsburg National Bank where early contributions were received.

Ike Plays Golf Round
PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 23 (AP)—President Eisenhower flew his wife to Phoenix for a vacation today and took advantage of his own brief stay in the Arizona sunshine to get a round of golf.

The President took off again for Washington after dining with the First Lady at the plush Maine Chance Resort where she will visit for about two weeks.

First Tee
Eisenhower was on the first tee at the Paradise Valley Country Club about an hour after his arrival here from Georgia.

Eisenhower had been vacationing for ten days at the plantation of former Treasury Secretary Humphrey but the weather was too cold for golf while he was there.

Congress May Act On Schools

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Sen. Ives (R-N.Y.) said today this session of Congress will approve an aid-to-education program differing from the proposals by President Eisenhower.

He also said that unless the national economy improves by midyear, Congress should and will vote a tax cut.

Crushed To Death

EPHRATA, Pa., Feb. 23 (AP)—Two-year-old Wilmer Horning, of Springfield, Ephrata RD 1, was crushed to death yesterday under the wheels of a tractor operated by his father, Amos, who was using the tractor to back a farm wagon into a barn.

The child, who had been playing near the barn, apparently ran under the tractor.

Golden Rule Plays Major Role As People Dig Way Through Snow In Newfoundland

By Peggy Bancroft
NEWFOUNDLAND—Three kinds of equipment have been put to good use in the area to help return life to a normal state: snow shovels, snow plows, and the Golden Rule!

Something about an emergency of the kind which has kept the Poonos digging out from under a 48-inch snowfall for the past week brings out the heart of a community, and the word "neighbor" takes on a new meaning.

The transition became apparent last week as people awakened to a different world—one that was unfamiliar in frightening, and one in which even close neighbors were temporarily cut off from each other. In a matter of minutes, however, the gap was closed by the telephone. Neighbors called each other "just to see if you're all right."

Then, "Do you need anything?" Knowing that help must come within the area, the "digging out" began. Everyone in the community and surrounding villages who owned a tractor or plow volunteered their services. The plowing kept on in the face of high winds which closed roads almost as quickly as they were opened.

Roads to homes where emergency cases existed were opened first. Then those to potential emergencies, heart patients, those seriously ill. Then the road to the Youth Hostel, where some 60 Girl Scouts were stranded. Car pools formed to take the girls to the nearest public transportation.

Neighbors were again telephoning: "We have our car out. Do you need anything?" Coal and fuel were delivered by truck wherever possible. Where it wasn't possible, it was carried in by hand. And the farm and home-owned plows kept working.

When the snow finally stopped after a 48-hour storm, shovels appeared. When a man finished his own path to the highway, he went to the neighbors and helped him. Then they joined forces with the next neighbor.

There were so many cases where help had to come from volunteers who refused to accept any payment excepting a cup of coffee and a "thank you."

In Angels, a couple whose age prevented their shoveling their own way out, found three Greene-Dreher-Sterling high school boys clearing a 500-foot-long path from the road to their home. In Newfoundland, another group carried milk and supplies in where they were badly needed.

Contest Ends This Week

DONALD Gage, chairman of the Acme Hose Co. fund raising committee, last night warned that the Four-County Firemen's Assn. Convention slogan contest ends this week.

The contest is being held to name the week of June 15, during which the 61st annual association convention will be held in East Stroudsburg.

The slogan, not to exceed four words, must feature the theme of volunteer fire fighting.

Friday Deadline
The contest ends Friday at midnight. First prize is $25.

The winning slogan will be attached to the convention, which will feature church services, parade, banquet, beauty pageant, fireworks and water follies within the space of six days.

All entries must be mailed to Acme Hose Co., 36 Spangenburg Ave., East Stroudsburg.

Organization Under Fire

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 23 (AP)—The big trouble with high school education today isn't spineless kids and soft teachers—it's the outmoded school district organization.

That's the considered opinion of a special committee of school administrators who have been studying the problem for two years. They presented their report today to the annual convention of the American Assn. of School Administrators—and brought along facts and figures to support their claim.

Large Enough
For instance, said the report, only one school district in eight is large enough to support as many as the "ideal" 40 teachers.

In more than 75 per cent of the school districts the high schools employ 10 or fewer teachers.

The committee's solution? Combine and unify many of the school districts to provide better schools with more teachers and facilities.

Drop In Value
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Commerce Department reported today that the gross national product—value of all goods and services—dropped from an annual rate of 440 billion dollars to 432 1/2 billion in the final quarter of 1957.

Marine Air Reserve Lists Plan

YOUNG men between 17 and 18 1/2 years of age are eligible to join the Marine Air Reserve six-month program which is designed to keep them in school during their training period.

Those who join assume an eight-year military obligation, the Marine Corps announced. Out of these eight years they serve only six months on active duty. The balance of the time is spent in the reserve training program.

Active Duty
The active duty comes after the reservist completes high school or reaches 20 years of age, whichever comes first. He is then reassigned to the Marine Reserve Squadron at the U. S. Naval Air Station, Willow Grove.

The squadron trains one week a month plus 15 days of training in the Summer.

Jury Rules On Death

READING, Feb. 23 (AP)—A Berks County coroner's jury ruled yesterday that Wernersville State Hospital and two of its employees were negligent in the death of an elderly patient.

The patient, George Ruth, 82, died last Thursday in Reading Hospital of burns suffered when he was mistakenly given a bath in extremely hot water.

The two attendants, Warren L. Miller, 16, and Russell H. Hartzell, 47, both of Wernersville, were dismissed after Ruth's death.

Soviet Union Makes Report

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Soviet Union submitted its first reports on findings in Antarctica today at an international polar scientists' symposium.

The reports included maps, graphs and topographical profiles of the areas Soviet scientists have explored. Scientists from Australia, Britain, France, the United States, Argentina, Russia and New Zealand attended.

"Rather it appears that the figure in each case is arrived at either by picking it out of the air or through what is essentially political negotiation."

Be Alert, Not Alarmed

It's reassuring to know that county and Civil Defense authorities are fully aware of the potential flood danger hanging over this area as the result of two recent heavy snowfalls.

We're happy to learn, too, that these officials—together with those of other agencies—are taking measures to cope with an emergency if one should strike.

We're less pessimistic, however, than some sources as to the possibility of a disastrous flood due directly to the deep snow cover.

The real threat, as we see it, is not from the snow alone, but rather from a combination of rapid melting of the snow followed by a heavy rainfall.

While "an above average flood potential" does exist, snow depths are not so great that they present a hazard in themselves. Any quick thawing would cause minor flooding of the streams, to be sure, but nothing to become alarmed about.

Besides permitting a slow runoff without harm, a gradual melting would take the frost out of the ground and allow the water to sink below the surface instead of directly into the streams.

Average snow depths in the Poconos have been estimated at 48 to 60 inches. The water equivalent is four to five inches, surely not enough to worry about at the moment.

The slow melting of the snow cover during the last several days has been in our favor. Barring further heavy storms and with continued thawing before the Spring rains, it's quite possible we will be spared the horrible experience of another serious flood.

It would be folly to trust everything to luck, however. While we do feel there is no cause for undue alarm at present, we strongly support the steps various agencies are taking to cope with a flood emergency.

It's better to be prepared and not need to go into action than to find ourselves totally unready to deal with disaster.

Opinions Of Other Editors

What Are The Answers?

There is an old story about a hotel guest who remained awake all night because the man in the room above dropped one shoe to the floor and never let the other fall.

One shoe was dropped in Pennsylvania last month when the Governor's special committee on the improvement of instruction met for two days in a meeting that was billed as "a milestone in Pennsylvania education."

The conferees filled out brief questionnaires during their discussion of 14 key issues. Quickly compiled, the questionnaires showed the committee to be in favor of some sharp changes in curriculum requirements and practices.

More detailed questionnaires were taken home to be filled out and returned to the State Department of Public Instruction by Feb. 5. That was more than two weeks ago. In order to be put in force by next school term, many of the changes ought to be presented to the State Council of Education soon.

Why the delay on the part of the Department of Public Instruction in announcing results of the survey? And if the questionnaire answers haven't been compiled, why not?

Like the man in the hotel room, people who are interested in the quality of Pennsylvania education are waiting for that other shoe to drop.

George Sokolsky Says...

Federal-State Taxes

One problem that must be solved sooner or later is the relationship between Federal and state taxation. The federal government takes a large share, what with income and payroll taxes and excises that state and municipal governments find themselves hamstrung. Local taxes realize that the load is getting too heavy and no politician desires to add the straw that will break the camel's back.

When one realizes, for instance, that in 1957 the Federal government took out of New York State, $15,000,000,000 and put back into the state, $28,000,000,000, is it truly a frightening situation. The reason, for instance, that so many educators want Federal aid for education, which ultimately will mean control of education, is the Federal tax on being so high, the states and municipalities are running short of money for this and all other services.

Way back in 1910, the Senator Harry F. Byrd's father, Richard E. Byrd, speaker of the House of Delegates of Virginia, opposed the income tax and the State of Virginia did not ratify the Sixteenth Amendment. Speaker Byrd, with rare prophetic vision, foresaw what this tax would do and what he then said has come to happen. He said:

"States Must Yield
"It (the 16th Amendment) means that the state must give up a legitimate and long established source of revenue and yield it to the Federal government.
"It means that the state actually invites the Federal government to invade its territory, to oust its jurisdiction and to establish Federal domination within the innermost citadel of reserved rights of the Commonwealth.
"This amendment will do what even the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments did not do—it will extend the Federal power so as to reach the citizen in the ordinary business of life. A hand from Washington will be stretched out and placed upon every man's business; the eye of a Federal inspector will be in every man's counting house.
"The law will of necessity have inquisitorial features. It will provide penalties. It will create a complicated machinery.

"Under it businessmen will be hauled into courts distant from their homes.
"Heavy fines imposed by distant and unfamiliar tribunals will constantly menace the taxpayer.
"An army of Federal inspectors, spies and detectives will descend upon the state. They will compel men of business to show their books and disclose the secrets of their affairs. They will dictate forms of bookkeeping. They will require statements and affidavits. On the one hand the inspector can blackmail the taxpayer and on the other, he can profit by selling his secret to his competitor.
"When the Federal government gets a strangle hold on the individual businessman, state lines will exist nowhere but on the maps. Its agents will everywhere supervise the commercial life of the states.
"I am not willing by any voluntary act to give up revenue which the State of Virginia herself needs, nor to surrender that measure of states' rights."

To this, one only needs to add a few sentences of the Declaration of Independence, written by another and earlier Virginian, Thomas Jefferson:

"He has created a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our People, and to eat out their substance."
"It is surprising that the meeting of Governors each year does not forcibly demand that the Congress call a convention of states to deal with this problem before it is too late.

For if we reach the point of no return, state and municipal governments will not be able to tax at all and all our local institutions will be controlled by swarms of wasteful and bossy office-holders, out of Washington, who will rule over us as though they were our masters, just as we saw them in the horrible O. P. A. days when we were told what to do with things we bought and paid for.

We shall cry out more and more loudly against this plague of double taxation as the recession continues, for we must ask ourselves where the money is to come from. Not only are Federal taxes high but they are insolently collected, and as the Internal Revenue Service grows more honest and efficient, we realize what a monster we have created against ourselves.

Behind The Scenes

In Hollywood by Harrison Carroll

Hollywood — They may be titans in the entertainment business and able to write a check for a million dollars, but Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz were just two scared parents when they got an emergency call at the studio that 5-year-old Desi IV had swallowed a religious medal.

The youngster was rushed to the hospital and fluoroscoped, but doctors could not see a thing.

"He didn't tell the nurse right away," says Lucille. "I guess he was afraid to because we have warned him so many times not to put things in his mouth. We asked him if he was sure he swallowed the medal. He said yes, that it tasted slippery."

She sighed, "I guess there's nothing to do but wait."

The Ice Man Cometh

Good Evening Ladies!

Huckster Rings Bell

By Ken Duval
Somewhere around this town is a woman who has dedicated her life to making mine miserable. She sells things by telephone, using a seductive voice, sultry, inviting and promising. She can make a roof repair job sound like a weekend at Atlantic City. She also knows the exact moment that I step under a shower, which must have taken some research of my personal life.

She never calls me when I'm sitting around doing nothing — only when I'm under the shower. A few days ago, I tried to outwit this haunt. I tried to outwit this haunt. I tried to outwit this haunt. I tried to outwit this haunt. I tried to outwit this haunt.

At my usual shower hour I walked nonchalantly upstairs like I had nothing on my mind, then raced back down and sat by the phone. She didn't call.

Then I tiptoed quietly up the stairs and sat on the top step for a full five minutes. Nothing happened. I went back down and paced up and down the room for a while. It was now almost the exact moment when I usually am all soaped up. No phone.

Nothing Happened
I then went back upstairs and turned on the shower, dashing back down and sitting by the phone another full five minutes. When nothing happened, I walked away, backward, never taking my eye off the phone.

I went all the way upstairs, thinking up nasty things I would say to this female, impugning her character, casting aspersions on her ancestry and slandering her product. If the phone company cut off my service, if she chose to sue me for defamation, it would be all right with me.

Five minutes later I had the most scurrilous speech all prepared for her, but nothing happened. It was growing late. Maybe this was her day off. I thought; maybe she had gotten married and retired; maybe somebody had shot her. I was momentarily conscious, stricken by the thought that perhaps she had taken my suggestion of last week and dropped dead.

Watchful Waiting
When the phone didn't ring, I crept up the stairs on hands and knees, softly as a cat, and shucked my clothes but kept a robe handy. The shower was still running. I made several feints at getting under the water, ears cocked toward the phone. I studied my face in the mirror for a while, wet my finger and straightened my luxurious eyebrows, then grabbed the robe and ran downstairs and up again.

It was obvious by this time that Miss Nuisance had given me up as a bad job. I put one foot in the water and then eased the rest of me under the shower. The house was silent as a tomb except for the falling water. I pulled the curtain and went to work with the soap.

Like a college yell at a funeral, the phone bell crashed the silence of the house. I let it ring a few times on the theory that it could be just that certain party, whose name I am forbidden ever to mention here, calling to ask her usual question, "What are you doing?" Or maybe just my fortunately kind employer to ask why the hell I had done so-and-so and this-and-that. The boss!

Dripping like a wet Newfoundlander, I made the phone. It was that poor man's Tullulah Bankhead and this time she was selling a detergent. She hung up without promising to convey my suggestion to her employer, and indelicate but highly appropriate idea.

"I am not willing by any voluntary act to give up revenue which the State of Virginia herself needs, nor to surrender that measure of states' rights."

"To this, one only needs to add a few sentences of the Declaration of Independence, written by another and earlier Virginian, Thomas Jefferson:

"He has created a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our People, and to eat out their substance."

"It is surprising that the meeting of Governors each year does not forcibly demand that the Congress call a convention of states to deal with this problem before it is too late.

For if we reach the point of no return, state and municipal governments will not be able to tax at all and all our local institutions will be controlled by swarms of wasteful and bossy office-holders, out of Washington, who will rule over us as though they were our masters, just as we saw them in the horrible O. P. A. days when we were told what to do with things we bought and paid for.

We shall cry out more and more loudly against this plague of double taxation as the recession continues, for we must ask ourselves where the money is to come from. Not only are Federal taxes high but they are insolently collected, and as the Internal Revenue Service grows more honest and efficient, we realize what a monster we have created against ourselves.

Stassen's Bid Unites His Foes

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — As one time like-man Harold E. Stassen bobbles about the state in quest of Pennsylvania's Republican gubernatorial nod, old line GOP warlords around Capitol Hill are working themselves into a rage and pother unequalled in many a campaign moon.

It is with a touch of irony perhaps that some of the GOP hotbeds note between gritted false teeth that Stassen's romp may well turn out to be the heretofore unfound and elusive catalyst for unification of Pennsylvania's warring GOP factions.

Republican chieftains at the moment, in their growing rage, dismay and nail-biting, are uncertain as to what course to pursue to stop the former "boy wonder" governor of Minnesota.

Under debate are several courses. One calls for simply ignoring the candidacy completely of the former presidential disarmament advisor — hoping for a death on the vine.

Another calls for a complete drowning out by dint of din and commotion and sundry political side weapons, of the Stassen move, thereby reducing it to a squeak in the wilderness.

Incessant Campaign
A third possibility under consideration is an active campaign — almost the equivalent of a general election campaign where blood-letting becomes quite fierce — to simply send the Stassen candidacy reeling under an incessant pounding.

A fourth possibility — considered only by the more rash elements — proposes a dash of strychnine on the Stassen tea leaves.

The important point in all of this is the almost unanimous bond of opposition that has developed within the Pennsylvania GOP hierarchy to the Stassen movement.

Why is there this opposition to the Stassen candidacy — a candidacy that carries with an international flavor, a "name" candidate, a heavy touch of the Republican Eisenhower Administration in Washington?

Seemingly these points would be attributes — but not necessarily in Pennsylvania. In this state Republicanism is what might well be termed a frenzied, cloistered art — nurtured over the years by one in-breeding after another.

In a strong sense it is a "closed corporation" in this state where it is not elsewhere.

To many a balding GOP warhorse Stassen is a rank outsider — which in this sense automatically disqualifies him. (GOP leaders have been painfully critical of the Democratic Leader Administration for bringing out-of-staters into the present administration.)

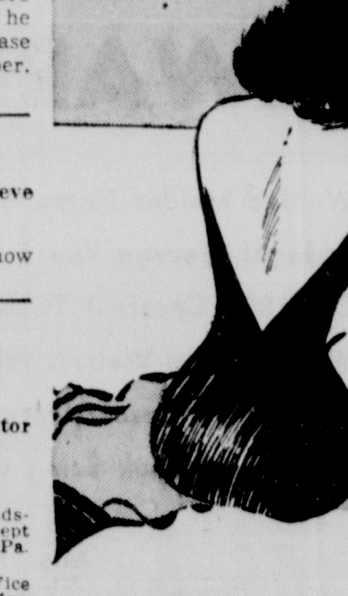

Secondly, Mr. Stassen has moved onto the Pennsylvania gubernatorial scene to the almost complete ignoring of the Keystone State's GOP leadership — something that heretofore has not been done by an "outsider" at least.

Thirdly, Pennsylvania GOP leaders are concerned primarily with climbing back into the gubernatorial driver's seat as a state political organization — as have Pennsylvania Democrats — rather than furthering the interests of a chief executive as an individual.

In the fourth place he was told emphatically, while his aspirations were in the brew stage, that he could not expect the support of Pennsylvania Republican leaders.

Or as one light-footed GOP aide phrased it: "The Democrats must have put him up to it!"

Jim Riley Says:

No Panic Necessary At Present

In recent days we have been reading about surveys and the possibility of floods should the present snow supply melt too rapidly. These reports should in no way strike panic into the hearts of residents of the Pocono Mountains.

True, we are still mighty touchy about floods and even the mention of the word sets our thoughts back to August of 1955 and December of last year.

But, that certainly isn't the reason for reports of this type.

Rate Slash Studied

Washington, Feb. 23 — The investigation - battered Federal Communications Commission is pondering a start line proposal.

It is a formal request by General Services Administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1945 for increased telephone charges. Applications for such hikes are pending in 22 states.

If the proposed reduction is granted by the FCC, it is Floete's intention to seek cuts in other types of government phone service. That includes making such requests of state agencies which have jurisdiction over rates affecting the Federal Telephone & Telegraph Co. Recently it announced consolidated earnings in 1957 were $829,779,296, of which AT&T itself earned $686,057,956. Both huge totals were all-time records.

Administrator Floete's unpublicized demand has a number of far-reaching potentialities; foremost among them the following:

It is directly counter to a nationwide trend for increased telephone charges. Applications for such hikes are pending in 22 states.

If the proposed reduction is granted by the FCC, it is Floete's intention to seek cuts in other types of government phone service. That includes making such requests of state agencies which have jurisdiction over rates affecting the Federal What's Behind It — In demanding this saving for the Government, Administrator Floete is proceeding under Section 201A of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949.

This provision empowers the GSA to represent the Government as a consumer before federal and state regulatory agencies in all matters relating to public utility services. This authority has not been often invoked by GSA.

A significant feature of the unnotified brief filed by Floete with the FCC is the use of AT&T's own figures to back the rate cut.

The company's own report on its earnings is stressed as one of the main reasons for Floete's proposal. The highlights of his argument concerning that are as follows:

"AT&T's cost study shows that the net operating earnings from interexchange channel investment (for private lines) is to be 12.5 percent for the coming year. . . . If the revenues from this service are reduced by 25 percent, the company's net operating earnings from such services will be in line with the AT&T's 6.4 percent net return for 1956."

"A 25 percent reduction in telephone grade tariffs would appear to be justified on the company's own figures. During the hearing, it may well develop that certain accounting and allocation adjustments will establish that the company's earnings are actually in excess of the ones shown in its exhibits."

Still trailing — Russia is still trailing far behind the U.S. in the "Life sciences." That's the authoritative view of Nobel Prize-winning Professor Hermann J. Muller of Indiana University. The noted scientist told the Joint Atomic Committee: "The Russian fields of technology I am most familiar with are those dealing with living things from microbes to plants, and from animals to men. In all of these fields, the Russians, because of the extensive destruction under Stalin of the most central of these sciences, genetics, have fallen far behind us."

A bipartisan group of midwest senators is quietly preparing a new attack on long - embattled Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson. Leaders of this bloc are Senators Milton Young (R.S.D.), Stuart Symington (D.Mo.) and Hubert Humphrey (D.Minn.).

Their backstage plan is to introduce a joint resolution designed to stop Benson from putting into effect his announced reductions in dairy and other price supports. If this scheme is voted by Congress, the intention of the group is to hail it as a "no confidence" pronouncement against Benson. This proposal has been privately discussed with Senate Republican Leader William Knowland. In this discussion, Senator Young made much of the fact that the California legislature overwhelmingly adopted a resolution assailing Benson's cuts in dairy price supports.

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

The calendar waxeth mighty fat for a fourth week, with all the third week's meetings blossoming side by side with regular fourth week activities. That is a matter which is causing some heart-burning but which is inevitable in a community as highly organized as ours.

There is always a traffic jam in meetings, and when even one day's meetings get postponed other days pile up like Foxtown Hill on a Summer Sunday. And when a whole week of meetings get postponed you've got the Fourth of July and Labor Day traffic all rolled into one.

Well, somebody else is going to have to sort out who is going to which. I've got my own problems. A week away from home didn't do much to the house besides collect dust, but add to that the week before when there wasn't any water, and I've really got a log-jam of housework piled up.

Don't worry. I'm approaching it as cautiously as a lumberman does a real log jam. I pry a little dirt loose here, and dab a bit of water there as if afraid that the whole thing would give way at once and overwhelm me with undone tasks.

It isn't that I'm afraid of housework, you understand. It's just that I have no will power. I can't dust the bookcase without starting to read the books. I can't discard magazines without looking through them to be sure I haven't missed anything.

I can't throw out the Sunday papers without doing the puzzles. I can't straighten the desk without getting involved in answering letters.

And if all other excuses fail, I can always turn on the television, just for company, you understand, and get so interested in what's going on that I take root in one spot with the dust cloth in my hand until I have to go somewhere.

And this week, there's some place to go every hour on the hour. Well, as long as the driveway stays drifted shut, I'm pretty safe.

It's Wise To "Case" Field Before Starting Business

By Anne Heywood

Once there was an old gag about two partners named Smith and Jones who went into business together.

In the beginning, Jones had all the money and Smith had all the experience. But by the time they were finished, it was just the other way around!

That happens too often to be funny. You have a little capital, so you decide to get a partner with experience—and that's the beginning of the end.

Hard To Choose
The problem of selecting a partner for a business is just as complicated—and potentially as dangerous—as choosing a partner in marriage. Yet a business partner is often a real necessity. You can't know or handle everything yourself. But how can you be sure you're choosing the right partner?

This is a problem facing Mr. K. He is an office worker and has been in the same large company for thirty-one years. In another four years he will be retiring.

As head of the bookkeeping department, he is very experienced with figures, but knows very little about people.

Real Need
He sees the great need of temporary office services, since he himself has quite frequently had to have temporary help in his department. When he retires, he wants to set up an agency offering this kind of service. He has a little capital and in this business, he will not have the worry of taking inventory of stock.

However, he has no experience with people and therefore will need a partner who has. What can he do?

First, he must "case" all temporary office services in his city. Instead of using just one, and ordering help by phone, he must go in person to all of them when he needs temporary workers. That way he'll get acquainted with many good interviewers and will begin to see what kind of person it takes to run the business.

And, of course, one of them might later be delighted to join forces with him.

Seek Advice
Second, he must consult his lawyer, banker and accountant and ask them to keep their eyes open for the right kind of person. Their judgment of people is frequently expert, as they have experience with so many different kinds.

Third, he must take his time. He is fortunate in having four and a half years before he actually opens his business. But when the time comes, he must watch all the "situations-wanted" ads and the "partners-wanted" ads, in the local paper, and contact everybody, if only to interview and reject them.

Just as eating a lot of different kinds of candy makes you pretty expert in judging candy, or looking at lots of paintings eventually makes you able to tell the good from the bad, so, too, getting to know lots of people helps you become a good judge of them!

One Had The Experience, But The Other Had The Money!

However, he has no experience with people and therefore will need a partner who has. What can he do?

First, he must "case" all temporary office services in his city. Instead of using just one, and ordering help by phone, he must go in person to all of them when he needs temporary workers. That way he'll get acquainted with many good interviewers and will begin to see what kind of person it takes to run the business.

And, of course, one of them might later be delighted to join forces with him.

Second, he must consult his lawyer, banker and accountant and ask them to keep their eyes open for the right kind of person. Their judgment of people is frequently expert, as they have experience with so many different kinds.

Third, he must take his time. He is fortunate in having four and a half years before he actually opens his business. But when the time comes, he must watch all the "situations-wanted" ads and the "partners-wanted" ads, in the local paper, and contact everybody, if only to interview and reject them.

Just as eating a lot of different kinds of candy makes you pretty expert in judging candy, or looking at lots of paintings eventually makes you able to tell the good from the bad, so, too, getting to know lots of people helps you become a good judge of them!

400 Students, Adults Hear Bee At Monroe Basketball Clinic

WATCH DEMONSTRATION—Part of the 400-some students and coaches watch one of the many demonstrations put on by Eastburg and Wilson high fives at court clinic headed by Clair Bee in Mountaineers spacious gymnasium.

HEAD 1ST ANNUAL EVENT—Heads of the first annual Monroe County Scholastic Basketball Clinic line up after morning sessions. Left to right Sam Russell, whose Wilson High team demonstrated; Earl F. Groner, superintendent of Stroud Union School District, hosts to the affair; Clair Bee, former great coach, who was the head instructor; T. Manning (Cap) Curtis, director and originator of clinic; and Doug Schoonover, East Stroudsburg High coach, whose five also performed.

Eastburg, Wilson Fires Participate

DESPITE weather which cut down attendance, the first annual Monroe Scholastic Basketball Clinic drew more than 400 students and adults to hear Clair Bee conduct four-hour session at Stroudsburg High's gymnasium Saturday.

Director, T. Manning (Cap) Curtis, director of athletics at Stroudsburg High, termed the event a success and announced upon its closing that another "basketball clinic" will be held in December of this year.

Under the supervision of Bee, Doug Schoonover's East Stroudsburg High's five, and Sam Russell's Wilson quintet—fired the night before in a Lehigh-Northampton League game—demonstrated various techniques through the day.

The former Long Island University and Rider College coaching phenomenon, mixing humor with psychological sarcasm in pointing out defects in various systems of offense and defense, kept the assembly at ease and interested during his more than four hour stay on the rostrum.

Fundamentals Bee stayed, for the most part, to the fundamentals—basic—principles of the game. He stressed shooting, passing and dribbling and with the help of the Cavaliers and Warriors noted drills designed to "smooth" out defects in a team's armor.

Schools represented at the clinic were Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Wilson, Pen Argyl, Pocono Twp., Chestnut Hill, Coolbaugh, Tobyhanna, Barrett and East Stroudsburg Teachers.

Introduced Clair Marty Baldwin, a long-time friend of Bee, introduced the guest instructor. Curtis opened the one-day affair with brief remarks. Students, during the one-hour lunch period, used the Stroudsburg High cafeteria and took advantage of a refreshment stand outside of the gymnasium.

German's 35 Leads STC To 8th Victory, 69-61

THANKS TO a 35-point performance by Charley German and a late game realization that you can't judge a foe by its record, East Stroudsburg Teachers' five was boasting its eighth triumph today.

Playing the first 32 minutes like a team with an "0-6" record, the Warriors shook off their "easy touch" attitude in the late stages and rallied to defeat a determined Cheyney STC quintet, 69-61, Saturday in the "Hill" gymnasium.

Except for German's gap-closing markers in the first half and Charley's collaboration with Mike Sentellik in the early moments of the final 20 minutes, East Stroudsburg played the way slow, deliberate—their not highly regarded foes—Cheyney wanted.

The visitors, now 0-7 in the teachers conference, didn't have the equipment to keep the Warriors down, but they did have enough offense to hold four to six-point spreads until Dick Luce's proteges decided it was time to go to work.

Start To Move With eight minutes gone in the second half, East Stroudsburg started to move as German drove and Sentellik and Chris Galombos hit on pushers to shoot their mates in front for good, 47-46 with 11 minutes remaining.

Cheyney hung on but the expected Warrior superiority was prevalent from here on out and East Stroudsburg went above the 500 mark—4-3 in the conference, and picked up its eighth win in 13 over-all starts.

German, hitting 17 out of 20 from the foul line, brought his conference total in seven games to 201 points, good for a 28.5 average against league opposition. For the season Charley is averaging 25 per outing in 13 games.

Sentellik, with 11, and Galombos with nine, were the second and third best scorers for ESSTC.

13th For Jayvees East Stroudsburg's high-flying junior varsity made Cheyney's JV's its 13th straight victim, bombing the Delaware Countians, 71-22, in the preliminary.

Tony Salerno, with 11, Schlegel and Doug Shook, with 10 each, paced the unbeaten Little Warriors.

Turner, with 11, Schlegel, with 10, and Doug Shook, with 10 each, paced the unbeaten Little Warriors.

Pocono Twp., Barrett At S-burg Gym

THE twice-postponed Pocono Township and Barrett High Monroe Scholastic Basketball League game will be played tomorrow at Stroudsburg High's gymnasium, school officials announced yesterday.

The contest, slated to start at 8:30 p.m., could bring about Pocono's clinch of the all-season MSL championship. A Barrett victory, however, will keep Joe Murray's five in the running for the title.

Team Records Pocono will enter the fray with a 12-1 record. Barrett owns a 10-3 log.

The rest of the MSL is slated to see action tomorrow also. However, it has been reported that the Poik-Tobyhanna and Chestnut Hill - Coolbaugh games may be postponed until later in the week.

Prior to the Pocono, Twp.-Barrett duel, a preliminary game between the junior varsities of each school will start at 7 p.m.

STC Matmen 7th In Meet

LOCK HAVEN—Lock Haven STC won the team championship in the Pennsylvania Teachers' wrestling championships here over the weekend. The Bald Eagles garnered 104 points, to beat out Millersville, owners of 71 at the finish.

East Stroudsburg placed seventh with 15 markers. Third place finishes by Allen Schaefer in the 137-pound weight, and Bruce Hayne in the heavyweight division aided the Warriors point total.

Another Warrior Andy Gall was fourth in the 191-pound class.

Eight schools participated in the meet.

Savitt Net Victor NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—Big Dick Savitt, the reluctant Dan Cupper, blasted Budge Patty with pulverizing power today and regained the national indoor tennis championship he first won in 1952. The scores were 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 12-10.

Catty Silences S-burg, 80-35

CATASAUQUA — It will be Catasauqua against Emmaus for the Lehigh Valley League seasonal championship. Catty made sure of it here Saturday night by bombing Stroudsburg, 80-35, to clinch the second half LV crown.

The Rough Riders will meet Emmaus, first half champs, Friday at a site to be designated later.

Using a man-to-man defense which bottled up the Mountaineers at practically every turn, Catty steamed away from a fairly close —12-6—first quarter lead to hand Stroudsburg its third loss in five second half LV games.

The cincher — Catty's sixth straight in the second half—was never closer after the first quarter as the Rough Riders ran up 37-11 (half-time), and 57-27 (three quarters) bulges. The host five outscored the Mountaineers, 23-8, in the final eight minutes.

Hold Ted To 10 Catty's defense was equally as efficient as its offense, holding the Lehigh Valley League's leading scorer, Ted Williams, to 10 points.

Stroudsburg's JV's ran afoul to Catty's jayvees in the preliminary, bowing to the Little Riders, 53-22.

Advance School Work Advocated

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 23 (AP)—Introduction of advanced courses and college instructional methods in high school was advocated today in a report to the American Assn. of School Administrators.

The report also noted growing concern over the United States lag behind the Soviet Union in training scientists.

The 369-page report—compiled by 10 public school administrators after a two-year study of U.S. high schools—said many communities have an outmoded, entrenched curriculum in secondary schools.

About 9,000 school superintendents and other educators considered the report at the start Saturday of the association's regional convention here.

The study hacked away at some of the traditional concepts of secondary education in this country.

Warning

It warned that the United States might fail to realize its greatest destiny because of inadequate provision for the education of its youth.

Introduction of advanced courses in junior high school, the report said, can be a telescoping of three years of work into two so that superior students can finish their grade work a year ahead.

Four Youths Found Dead In Car

WILKES-BARRE, Feb. 23 (AP)—Four young men were killed early today by carbon monoxide fumes as they sat in their disabled car in a rural area 20 miles west of here.

The four, including 17-year-old twin brothers, apparently had been waiting for help in fixing the car when the deadly fumes overcame them.

The victims were James and Joseph Supek; Patrick Barry, 18; and Edmond Dombroski, 17, all of Scranton.

They were discovered shortly before 10 a.m. by state police Cpl. Charles Givler on a routine patrol along State Highway 115, a mile east of the Red Rock Air Force Base.

Motor Running

Givler said the motor of the car was still running. Three of the boys were in the front seat. The other was in the rear.

From appearances at the scene, Givler gave this account:

A tire blew out and the boys got out to fix it. They discovered that the battered 1937 sedan owned by the Supek boys' father had no spare. The boys climbed back into the car to keep warm. Exhaust fumes leaked from a defective manifold and was drawn back up into the car by the heater fan.

Joseph Supek Sr., said the boys had taken the car last night to drive a serviceman friend to a rural area where he could board a bus.

Soviet Union Seeking New Friends

BANGKOK, Thailand, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Soviet Union is seeking to win friends in Thailand and neighboring Cambodia by supplying medical equipment.

One Thai official says the program "has nothing to do with politics."

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the Russians will undertake construction of a new hospital in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital.

Supervision

Tass said the hospital would be built under supervision of Soviet specialists. It did not make clear whether the Soviets were actually putting up the cash for the construction.

The report said the hospital would be able to accommodate 500 patients, and have an outpatient clinic for another 500 persons.

All equipment will be supplied by the Soviet Union, Tass said.

The Soviet offer to Thailand comprises a cohort unit for the treatment of cancer, the newspaper Siam Rath reported.

State Loans Wayne Area

HONESDALE—Secretary of Highways Lewis M. Stevens announced in Harrisburg yesterday that state-owned and rented snow removal equipment was turned over to township supervisors in Wayne County on Saturday.

They will help clear the 600 miles of township roads still clogged with snow.

A similar program will be put in effect in Bradford County, Stevens said.

Conference

Daniel Carmody, Wayne County commissioner, conferred in Honesdale with Thomas H. Gay, who is supervising the Highways Department's million-dollar-a-day battle against the snow, and Civilian Defense officials.

Stevens said the department agreed to release its equipment to the townships as soon as the roads on the state system were cleared.

The state will be repaid by deducting the cost from the townships' allocations of motor license funds due April 1.

Montana May Make Bid

THOMPSON FALLS, Mont., Feb. 23 (AP)—This northwestern Montana community of 851 today invited the nation to move its capital here.

Sen. James E. Murray D-Mont said last week in Washington that if the District of Columbia continues to pave its parks and playgrounds he would introduce legislation to move the capital to Montana.

THE SEARCH—Among the men and women who make the Cardiovascular Research Center in Philadelphia one of the finest of its kind in the world are Drs. Julio Davila, Paul Rivera and Asseria Cerutti. They are shown here in the midst of a heart operation using an experimental animal. Such animals have saved the lives of thousands of human beings through their contributions to the search for new surgical methods.

Heart Operation Triumphs Occur In Quiet Laboratory

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of four articles on the Thoracic and Cardiovascular Research Center in Philadelphia. Funds collected through Monroe County's Heart Fund Drive help support research there.)

By Leonard Randolph
ALTHOUGH newspapers and magazines (and, of course, the public) are more inclined to give attention to the colorful drama of a successful heart operation, the real triumph of the Powelton Ave. laboratory is more quiet—and more beautiful.

There are many things which can be said about the work Dr. Robert Glover, Dr. Julio Davila and Dr. Robert Trout are doing at the lab. Perhaps the most important thing is that they are working together without losing their individual identities. Each of the three men contributes something unique and creative to the Cardiovascular Research Center. So do the others who concentrate on the keeping of records, the development of new machines for use during operations, the evolution of new methods for measurement.

All of these things seem dry and dull and uninteresting to a layman—until he begins to realize, as Dr. Glover says, that "every single step of successful heart surgery has been measured and tried out in the laboratory first."

Without this primary research, no man would dare attempt a delicate operation on the human heart—even though the heart is the strongest organ in the human body and an efficient mechanism of unbelievable durability.

The Cardiovascular Center is unusual in another respect. It is "situated" in a General Hospital (Presbyterian), although it has no financial connection with the hospital.

And therein lies one of Glover's most adventurous and stimulating theories. As the eminent heart surgeon sees it, we shall one day see the time when many general hospitals will have a cardiovascular unit attached to them.

"We envision that in cardiac medicine and surgery, the future lies in such units attached to hospitals all over the country—perhaps to all sizeable hospitals in all communities," Dr. Glover said.

"These would be units where not only are all kinds of patients taken care of, but research in all kinds of diseases could be carried out and would be an integral part of the hospital's operation," he said.

Considering the cost of such projects, is this "dream" likely to come true? Perhaps not—not, at least, until some large U.S. "foundations" follow the lead of the Ford Foundation and put their money to work in small communities. Even then, there would be a lack in many cases of qualified personnel.

But Glover's ideas have a hub of becoming reality. He is not a man who takes any answer as a final one. The perfect car in point is the Powelton Center. It may be overcrowded, it may lack some of the hoopla or publicity that other research centers often receive—but it grew out of the dirt and grime and ashes of an unused building from another century. Because Glover and those who worked with him knew they had to find a way to do what they felt must be done.

Thanks to that determination, the center now exists. It should, with time and increased interest such as that shown by the Monroe County Heart Committee, grow larger and even better than it now is.

The value of the Center extends far beyond the realm of heart surgery. The men who staff it are interested in many things. More than this, they are determined to find answers to hard questions.

And this, after all, is the real story of research: A man with an idea has the equipment he needs and the time to think in between experiments.

One Injured In Wreck

POCONO PINES — One person was injured in a two-car accident at 2:10 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of Routes 940 and 490 here.

Mrs. Muriel Anderson, 25, of Headricks was treated at Monroe County General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, for head injuries and released.

State Police at Mount Pocono said a car driven by Mrs. Anderson's husband, Richard, skidded on a curve and collided head-on with a vehicle operated by Dr. D. F. Allen, Collingswood, N. J.

Mystery Drives Family From Home

SEAFORD N.Y., Feb. 22 (AP)—Mysterious antics of bottles and other objects finally proved too much today for the James Herrmann family. They quit their home to live with relatives.

A flying sugar bowl and a leaping ink well last night served as the final straws to the nerve-wracked mother and father of two children, James, Jr., 12, and Lucille, 13.

For 18 days the family had been plagued by bottles blowing their screw tops and similar incidents. The phenomenon has defied all explanations.

A bottle of bleaching liquid blew its screw top last night in the cellar. A porcelain figurine danced off a table. Herrmann called police.

On Hand

Detective Joseph Tozzi of the Nassau police said he was present during the next strange event.

He said a sugar bowl, containing a pound of sugar, flew off a dinette table and struck a nearby table. It made a fifth of an inch dent in the wood.

"There is no question that it did happen," said Tozzi, "and there's no explanation for it."

"It was impossible for any human hand to have touched that sugar bowl. I was standing in the doorway outside the dinette. The boy was at least 15 feet from the table. The father was talking with me. Mrs. Herrmann and the daughter were elsewhere in the house."

After Tozzi left, Mrs. Herrmann called the police again. She said an ink bottle flew off a table, bounced off the front door and spilled ink on wallpaper and a rug.

That was enough for the Herrmanns.

Four Vehicles In Accident

NO ONE was injured in a four-vehicle crash at 12:15 p.m. Saturday on Route 209, three miles west of Stroudsburg.

State Police of the local barracks said a truck-trailer operated by Robert Nolf, 47, Kingston, struck a pickup truck driven by Martin Maier, 62, Stroudsburg RD 2. The truck-trailer then veered to the left and rammed two parked cars and a gasoline pump in front of the Ray Weaver store.

The parked vehicles are owned by Fred J. Marsh, Stroudsburg, RD 3, and Ora Bonser, Stroudsburg, RD 2.

Nolf will be charged with reckless driving, police said.
